Bachelor's Degree in

TRANSNATIONAL AND EUROPEAN LEGAL STUDIES

→ Programme overview

This new Bachelor's Degree course, entirely in English, provides in-depth basic training for those interested in studying the transnational and European dimension of legal sciences. It aims at training legal professionals with specific skills in transnational and European law. The objectives of such study programme involve an interdisciplinary knowledge and specialised legal skills in areas affected by an increasing interculturality. This allows graduates to address issues related to the transnationality of various legal relationships.

Thanks to this multidisciplinary approach, the Course appears different from both the traditional Master's Degree in Law and the Bachelor's Degree Programme in Labour Consultant and Legal Services Sciences, as well as from the Bachelor's Degree Programme in Law and New Technologies, all active at UniME, because of its merit and method. Such proposal regarding this new Course is also innovative compared to the already existing offerings nationally: neither in Southern Italy nor in the Italian islands are there three courses of the same type, and even those active in universities in Central-Northern Italy have characteristics and contents different from the ones provided in this Course.

Graduates can either complete their Course with a Master's Degree (primarily the Single-Cycle Master's Degree in Law, as well as various Master's Degree Programmes, both national and international, in the fields of Law, Economics, Political Sciences, and International Relations) or immediately pursue a professional career in different legal-based fields, including internationally.
